

SAVE YOUR LIFE (allen kitselman)

Everybody's looking for a light on in the window

Across their frozen winter's night

I know someday, you're going to find yours

Because I've been cold and I found mine

So if you're shaking like the bridge across the narrows

Blown by the winds of your life

Just hold all your doubts at arm's length and let go

You will need it someday....Save your life

I was eighteen once and man, it wasn't pretty

I thought I'd never find my way

I was eighteen on the day you were born

And I found some answers in your little face

Play that guitar until your fingers bleed

If that's what you want, that's what you need

Don't let anyone tell you what to be, it's a journey not a race so Godspeed....and Save your life

If I could give you one more small piece of advice

Take your time looking, boy

But man, don't think twice

All these troubles that you long so to evade fade into the background in life's changing landscape
