

The Last Hurrah (hansbarger)

If I had a million dollars, I'd give it to you
If I had an airplane, I'd fly it on through.
If I had a tall cool drink, I'd pour it in your glass.
If I had but one eye left, I'd still look at your ass.

For this is the last hurrah
And this might be the very best one of all.
And this is surely my last call
In the roadhouse of my life.

I once was a lonely man who sat beside a stream
Pondering the universe and wondering what it means
I read all the books, I took them way too seriously.
Still the real life whirled around just out side of me.

CHORUS

I was drifting when I first met you
On a deep and restless sea
I'd found love and I'd found peace
But I had not yet found me...

Once I was a hip man. Now sometimes I'm a limp man.
Sometimes I'm a saint and sometimes time a fool
Sometimes I do all the things that I'm supposed to do.
Sometimes I just wanna lie around the house with you.
